The 85.1m (279.2ft) Solandge is one of the world's most iconic megayachts. Renowned designer Espen Oeino sculpted her dramatic lines, matching them with soft, graceful arcs for a sleek and stunning profile. Built by German shipyard Lurssen in 2013, Solandge's impeccable North European pedigree ensures no compromise was made on quality or performance. Interior designer Aileen Rodriguez crafted a lavish, supremely luxurious interior, designed as a home-from-home on the water. Six decks and an exceptional volume of 2,899 gross tons provide infinite space for up to 12 guests in eight opulent cabins.

The owner knew that he wanted a luxurious main salon. He got that and more. The main salon has two walls of backlit amethyst that turns it into a magical place. A Bechstein piano gives it a touch of elegance while also providing a source of entertainment. The main salon's starboard side has a Venetian console with a large mirror. No matter which way guests turn, they find something uniquely beautiful: the perfect blend of classic style and contemporary innovation.

*I*nterior designer Aileen Rodriguez has created a highly luxurious atmosphere with classical touches and a contemporary backdrop. A special mix of rare and strikingly beautiful materials provides Solandge a unique and exclusive style. The wooden floors have borders made of honey onyx stone. The ceilings are covered in gold leaf. Schonbek chandeliers hang with amethyst rose quartz crystals. Truly, every inch of this yacht is something to celebrate.

Solandge has enough room for the two owners, 12 guests accommodated in 7 staterooms, staff sleeping in separate cabin, and a crew of up to 29 people staying in 15 cabins. The guest cabins are nearly as painstakingly beautiful as the owner's stateroom.

Guests even have access to a guest lobby, which comes in handy during long journeys when they may need to take care of business remotely.

The owner's suite occupies its own deck, and includes all the luxuries (and necessities of home). The owners get to enjoy a private office, his-and-her opulent bathroom and dressing rooms. The owner's stateroom provides a full 180° view overlooking the bow, and outdoor sitting spots. Look in inside the bedroom, handmade Italian furniture includes a small table and chairs, a lady's desk with a leather top and a chest of drawers, while hand-painted backlit window mullions depict themes from the Garden of Eden.

At night, the top deck can become a nightclub full of activity. The Jacuzzi easily transforms into a dance floor surrounded by the kind of professional lighting that one would expect to find at an urban nightclub. The area even has a built-in DJ console and large screen. This lets the owner play music videos while entertaining. Guests can also choose to use the screen to play popular video games.

When entering Solandge through the main entrance into the wooden floor and onyx inlay floored foyer, you are instantly captured by the golden «Tree of Life»- a lighted sculpture where more than 1,200 points of light act as tropical rain drops that bring coloured glass flowers to bloom. The tree is approximately 16 metres (50 feet) high and covers the entire height from the tank deck up to the bridge deck.
